DAILY RYTHEM:

Each morning we wake early to prepare for our dawn ocean launch to set off to find our dolphin friends in the warm Indian Ocean. We expect that our boat time would be about an hour. We follow carefully considered protocols for when we encounter dolphins, as we always take the cue from them as to if they would like to commune with us. Angie who has been sensitively conducting dolphin encounters for many years is an expert at dolphin behaviours and ensures we never impose upon them. We snorkel with the dolphins from the boat and this may vary from a few minutes to up to 20 or 30 minutes if the dolphins remain with us.

We return to shore and make our way back to our lodgings for an eagerly awaited brunch. A time of rest after which we convene together mid afternoon for Dreamtime reflection and sharing of our time in the ocean. A creative space is follows with Yola guiding our creative expression through journaling, poetry writing, colour play and painting.

Dinner is served, followed by an immersive time with the African Wilderness Wisdom deck and a sharing of how the wilderness informs our lives and brings us back to a wholeness where each part of our lives becomes informed by what we are.

There is plenty of free time to enjoy the beautiful beaches and the village of Ponta do Oura at leisure

“The dolphin slowly swam beneath me, then she swivelled her body to look straight into my eyes. I became the ocean then, melted in a sea of love. There was no ‘me’ any longer, just a field of joy, as she circle swam around me. In the vast expanse of the ocean she seemed to see my very soul.” Andrew.

“The excitement of being on the boat for the first time scanning the waters for the dorsal fins , I feel like a child again . When we spot them , we put our snorkelling gear on ,and wait for Angie’s signal to enter the water as she respectfully attunes to the dolphins and their behaviour .

I enter the water ,the expanse of the ocean and being immersed in it takes my breath away. Initially I feel alien in this vast watery world and a bit clumsy with my fins and snorkel . Andrew takes my hand reassuringly , gently guiding me to swim . As I place my face under water, I am immediately entranced and delighted by the depth of blue, everywhere , surrounding me and I am in love with the beauty of it . A shape is emerging from the ultramarine blue , heading swiftly towards me . This is the part where words become meaningless in describing the pure rapture that followed , in communion with these beautiful finned Kin, swimming in the slipstream of their consciousness, simply magnificent.

I am forever blessed by these magical encounters.” Yola
